

The ins and outs of Educational Studies

Flexibility while earning your B.S.

Interested in being an educator, but not in a PK-12 public school setting?

Finding the traditional pathway to teacher certification fraught with obstacles?

Changing your career path in junior or senior year?

Interested in education as a transfer student?

A B.S. in educational studies might be for you!

All students take a set of core classes relative to working with children and communities, and they can select one or more concentrations.

Concentrations

- Early Childhood Education
- Elementary Education
- MLED English Language Arts
- MLED Mathematics
- MLED Science
- MLED Social Studies
- Physical Education Teacher Education
- Special Education

Commonly Selected Minors

- Human Development & Family Studies
- Community-Based Learning
- Child & Youth Well-Being
- Entrepreneurship
- Social Welfare
- Business Administration
- Leadership Studies
- Coaching

Career Opportunities

- Children's Museum Educator
- Peace Corp Liaison
- YMCA or Boys and Girls Clubs
- At risk program or help lines
- Academic Advisor or Tutor
- Community Outreach Coordinator
- Children's Association or Adult Education

Can I get certified to teach with this degree?

You can get an M.A.T. degree to become certified to teach.
An educational studies degree does not lead to teacher certification.

Need more info?

Scan here or visit:

<https://tinyurl.com/ym6dxt75>

Need to talk to someone?

E-mail the Program Director Kimberly Oxley
oxleyk@winthrop.edu

